Outline of Session

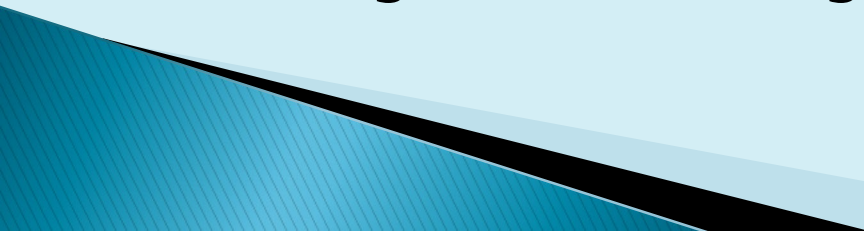

- ▶ The social exclusion module on criminology programme
 - ▶ Nathan's Experience
 - ▶ Fay's Experience
 - ▶ Katie's Experience
 - ▶ Student and Module Leader Reflections

Beginning the Year

- ▶ Voicing students opinions – who are socially excluded?
- ▶ Establishing a group dynamic
- ▶ What would students like to explore?
There is no predetermined content!

Agreeing Overall Module Topics

- ▶ Opened up interesting debate surrounding social exclusion
 - ▶ Allowed for creative thinking and gave deeper understanding to issues surrounding us daily
 - ▶ The module flowed freely, keeping things interesting
 - ▶ Safe classroom environment allowed for free speech and the sharing of experiences and feelings surrounding social exclusion

Communication

- ▶ High amount of student-lecturer cooperation.
- ▶ Giving feedback or finding strengths
- ▶ Motivation

Breakdown of Marks Agreed

- ▶ Lecturer marking of seminar and seminar related materials – 60%
- ▶ Lecturer mark of student self – reflection to be submitted post seminar – 25%
- ▶ Peer assessment of seminar, individually written and confidentially submitted to lecturer – 15%

Nathan's Seminar

- ▶ Low income families and Homelessness
- ▶ Universal tax Credit Scheme
- ▶ Prior reading and Benefits

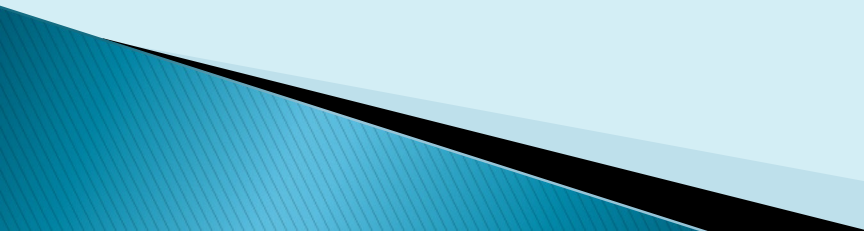

Nathan's Experience

- ▶ Should be implemented in more modules
- ▶ Can be adapted to larger groups
- ▶ Improves overall class dynamic
- ▶ Refreshing take on lectures

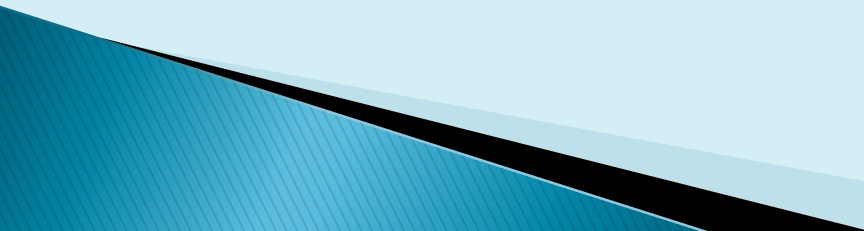

Fay's Seminar

- ▶ Race and ethnicity
 - ▶ Why I chose this
 - ▶ Prepared by having a planning meeting lecturer
 - ▶ I focused on hate crime and Islamophobia
 - ▶ Kate focused on asylum seekers and refugees

Deciding Seminar Aims

- ▶ To gain understanding of the issue of hate crime in the UK
- ▶ To gain knowledge on current events surrounding hate crime and islamophobia, and,
- ▶ To build and understanding of the laws around hate crime and if they are put into practice

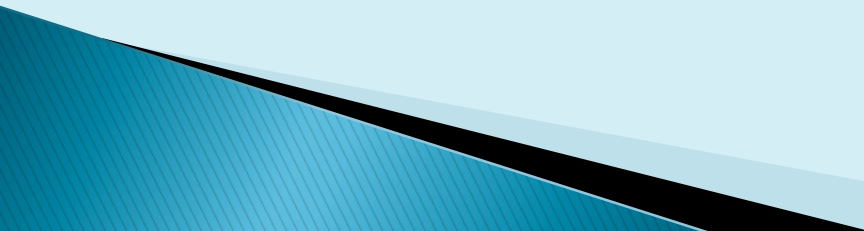

Benefits and What I Would Change

- ▶ Short video opened up discussion of peoples experiences of hate crime
 - ▶ Improved confidence
 - ▶ Pace myself more – less rushing
 - ▶ Check out students' prior knowledge e.g. hate crime legislation

Katie's Seminar – Why I Chose Topic

- ▶ Working towards a career in Probation Services, therefore wished to focus on those convicted of an offence
 - ▶ Convicted sexual offenders are an often overlooked group in regards to social exclusion
 - ▶ An interesting challenge to view perpetrators of serious criminal offences as victims of social exclusion

Preparing for Seminar

- ▶ Priority was to approach subject with utmost sensitivity and integrity.
 - ▶ I discussed this with my lecturer to get balance right – report factual information about exclusion of offenders whilst acknowledging victims and those impacted by these crimes.
 - ▶ At start of seminar, I focused on creating safe space to share, including reminding group members they could leave at any point, if needed.

Peer Reflections and Assessment

Refreshing approach that is beneficial to learning experience and skills development:

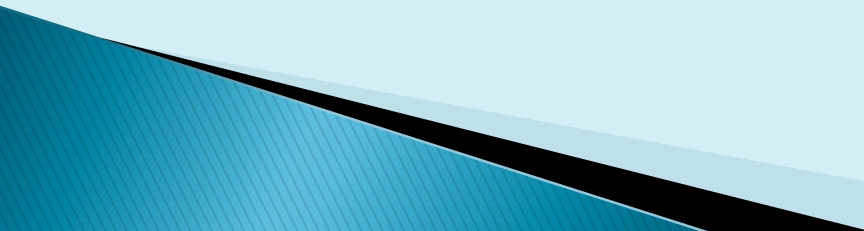

- ▶ Critical thinking
- ▶ Viewing peers work objectively
- ▶ Improved understanding of marking criteria and learning outcomes / applying that understanding
- ▶ Appreciating other people's work in much more great detail, as well as our own

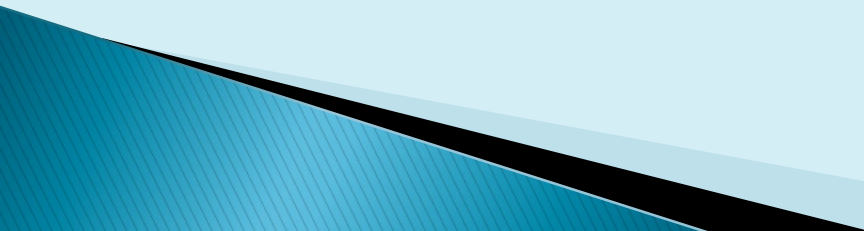

Student Led Learning

- ▶ Created a more interesting learning environment. By choosing topics we remained engaged.
 - ▶ Encouraged us to work harder – to get as much out of the seminars, if not more, as we put in. We also worked harder to not let peers down.
 - ▶ Enabled positive relationship building – between peers and with lecturer
 - ▶ By selecting our topics, we learnt from peers who were really passionate about their subject. This really showed through their seminars

Module Leader Reflections

- ▶ In community work it is unusual to decide all content in advance
 - ▶ + Approach was engaging and experiential
 - ▶ + Attendance was 100% during student led seminars. Students needed each other to succeed
 - ▶ – Also higher risk: concerned about pushing students out of their comfort zone
 - ▶ – Required more work than having content determined by lecturer in advance

Unexpected Benefits

- ▶ Aside from truly high quality seminars
 - ▶ Robust breakdown of marks negotiated with the group – a truly cooperative process
 - ▶ Quality of peer feedback was outstanding. Students referenced learning outcomes.
 - ▶ Everyone read the set reading – WOW. One student paid for article chosen as the set reading – DOUBLE WOW!

Suggested Adaptations

- ▶ Working in pairs (if a larger group)
 - ▶ If too anxiety provoking to facilitate seminar in person, alternatives could be experienced in the group; podcast or video
 - ▶ Increase % of mark that comes from peer assessment AND
 - ▶ Potentially, assess the quality of the feedback given by students, to their peers
